1. The first step is to identify the problem. This is done by asking the client what the problem is and how it affects their life. The therapist then listens to the client's response and identifies the problem.

2. The second step is to set goals. The therapist and client work together to set goals that are realistic and achievable. The goals are then written down and the client is given a copy.

3. The third step is to develop a plan. The therapist and client work together to develop a plan that will help the client achieve their goals. The plan is then written down and the client is given a copy.
